GREEN PATH NORTH FINAL BLOW, LA DEPARTMENT OF WATER AND POWER CANCELING APPLICATION

The controversial Green Path North, which would see huge high-power lines cut across pristine portions of our desert, is most likely dead. The city of Los Angeles moved one step closer to scrapping plans for the electrical transmission system. According to the Bureau of Land Management, Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, the LADWP, called the BLM saying they will fax a request today to pull the application. The DWP will also terminate the memorandum of understanding it had with the BLM and U.S. Forest Service to build Green Path North.
